

It is said that ‘Nothing appears more surprising to those who consider human affairs with a philosophical eye, than the easiness with which the many are governed by the few.’* While one may not have a particular interest in the role Philosophy has played in our amalgamated Western Society today, such – nonetheless - has a huge importance in our ‘From There to Here’ journey leading to where we are today! If that which is claimed of ‘philosophic antiquity’ is to have some meaning in ‘reality’ - albeit beginning long, long, long-ago - it must, we conclude, be better-founded upon a less presumptive base; not built from an unsupported historical ‘deck of cards’ per se - and - this construed as fact within a purposefully-structured academic protocol that tends to ‘fudge’ reality by building unsupportable rhetorical-bridges employed to span huge historical gaps that [otherwise] would be simply too-wide and too-deep to pass over and not look back in disgust of the many [ruts] that have been buried beneath! Consequently, what we have found in following such an over- growth from its [purported] fundamentals in ancient Greece to the 21st century, there is a high degree of false implication suggesting that that which is ‘proposed’ should be ‘accepted’ as philosophy because it is academically-researched and thus well-studied! All very well from the standards of the masses who revere such a plateau, however, since what is ‘proposed’ has an all-too-evident scholastic-foundation, from an enquiring layperson’s perspective that which is purported reeks of subterfuge and conspiracy! Put simply what is now said to be ‘established’ is merely ‘academic analysis’ and this likened to a ‘leaky-boat’ that needs constant bailing - or it will sink! Having asserted the above, so that what is suggested is not taken lightly, we now review what we have learned while reaching the data included in Volumes One, Two and Three... for this to be more explicit, we think it best to review the term - and - the overall objective of basic ‘Philosophy’: Philosophy is a study that attempts to discover the fundamental principles of the sciences, the arts - and the world with which these sciences and arts deal! The word ‘Philosophy’ derives from the Greek meaning ‘love of wisdom’! This search for such began in the Western World when the Greeks are said to have established (c.600 BCE?) independent-inquiry into theological creeds. Philosophy, thusly, is distinguished from {theology} inasmuch as philosophy was [intended] to {reject such dogma} but yet proceeds to deal with {conjecture} so that it can accommodate the usual status of ‘Blind Faith’ in which one derives a sense of “belief” superseding fact! Philosophy, therefore, need not differ from ‘science’ - inasmuch as both the natural and the social sciences founded upon fact base their theories wholly upon what can be established as fact - not simply accommodating protocol as fact! Philosophy - over the centuries - especially in the West - had also moved into areas of inquiry where {no facts} were/are available. Originally, science - as such - did not exist; thereby philosophy covered the entire field! However, as facts became available - and tentative/uncertain prospects emerged - philosophic sciences began to break away from reality and on into what is called ‘metaphysical speculation’ so as to pursue their different aims and make these compatible - one-to-the-other! Thus, {physics} having once been in the ‘realm of basic philosophy’ became re-oriented; and - in the early 20th century - such re-orientation included {psychology} and thus established as a ‘science apart from philosophy’ .**
