Not illustrated. 1887 Excerpt: ... the menstrual nusus two or three days, or would be simultaneous. I diagnosed cerebral hyperemia, and treated with quinas sulph., diffusive stimulants, bromide of potassium, the hot pack, etc., and she apparently made a good recovery in about a week. Upon inquiry, I found that her mother had been subject to similar attacks until after marriage. She and the daughter mentioned above and a son of twelve are all troubled with a severe unilateral pain in the head; severe neuralgic pain in supra orbital, cervical, occipital, brachial and intercostal regions, increased by excess of heat or cold. Both women are troubled with dysmenorrhea and habitual constipation. I am treating them, until I get more light, on the following: R. Comp. Tinct. Ergotse...A ounces. Tinct. Ferri Chlor....2 ounces. Ext. Nucis Vom. fl H drachms. Aquase q. s. ad 8 ounces. M. Sig.: Teaspoonful three times a day. I have not heard from them since the treatment was commenced, a few days ago. Now, what is the pathological condition in these cases, and treatment? I think there is some neurosis of the fifth nerve, but what is it? Some one will very materially aid a younger brother by giving an opinion. Amity, Ark. I. J. Jones, M. D. Dysmenorrhea--Inter-Menstruation. As regards the case of W. D. McCarty, M. D., on page 291, I would suggest that, in addition to what he is prescribing, the patient take a warm bath of ten or fifteen minutes once or twice per day, during each menstrual period, and for a few days before. I think if the doctor would make a digital vaginal examination, and report the result, he and we would be a little wiser; but I do not think he would find anything unnatural in appearance. I think the use of the speculum would be useless. All that ails the patient is a congenital delica...
