it was the first time a photographer was allowed to enter The Horror Room of the Veterinarian Museum of Maison Alfort near Paris, where the remaining pieces of Fragonards Ecorches were displayed but hidden from the public. Fragonard (cousin of the famous painter) spent nine years preparing thousands of anatomical items for view. Most of them were destroyed during The French Revolution in 1789 because they were perceived as a symbol of the Bourgeoisies decadence. You are looking at human corpses as Art Objects.
